Course Description

ENC2210: Technical Writing is an introduction to technical and professional writing. This course presents students with practical information about communicating in different workplace environments and discourse communities. Throughout the semester students will produce and analyze texts within a number of common technical writing genres, including: emails, resumes, letters, memos, reports, proposals, technical descriptions, and technical definitions.

Students will analyze and respond to the different rhetorical situation each assignment presents. Students will also consider concepts such as audience, organization, visual design, style, and the material production of documents. Canvas discussions will provide students with the opportunity to participate in conversations about assigned readings and writing projects, to work closely with the instructor, and to work with peers in writing and revision workshops. Technical writing is produced individually as well as collaboratively. Accordingly, ENC2210 emphasizes both individual and team efforts.

COVID-19 Statement

This course is completely online and asynchronous, thus we will never meet via Zoom or F2F for class (only Zoom office hours). However, rest assured that I am active in the course and will engage with you throughout the semester. This specific section of ENC2210 was designed for online learning before COVID-19 disrupted the world, so that means that there are not any official accommodations that the University offers for online-only courses, but I am more flexible. I am aware of the fact that COVID-19 continues to impact our daily lives. Thus, if you are experiencing any hardships because of the virus, please contact me as soon as possible so that we may make any necessary arrangements contingent on your circumstances. I'm willing to work with you; my goal is to keep you on track and to make sure that you don't get left behind, but you must also put forth the effort of communication and professionalism.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course, students enrolled in ENC2210 should be able to:

- Identify and understand the functions of the primary genres of technical writing
- Produce professional caliber technical documents
- Analyze and adapt to the constraints of specific rhetorical situations, including audiences, purposes, and uses
- Develop strategies for addressing multiple audiences in any given technical document, including accommodations for expert and non-professional audiences
- Write documents that are accessible and reader-centered
- Strategically orchestrate elements of document design and layout, including type, spacing, color, and medium
- Integrate tables, figures, and other visual aids into documents
- Produce documents both collaboratively and independently
- Develop and administer user tests, then analyze and synthesize user test data
- Refine writing style for clarity, concision, coherence, cohesion, and emphasis
- Critique and revise documents to ensure that they fulfill their intended purposes
- Work with peers to provide written and oral feedback to one another

General Education Objectives

- This course confers General Education credit for Composition (C), and also fulfills 6,000 of the university's 24,000-word writing requirement (WR).
- Composition courses provide instruction in the methods and conventions of standard written English (grammar, punctuation, usage), as well as the techniques that produce effective texts. Composition courses are writing intensive. They require multiple drafts submitted to your instructor for feedback before final submission.
- Course content should include multiple forms of effective writing, different writing styles, approaches, formats, and methods to adapt writing to different audiences, purposes and contexts.
- Students should learn to organize complex arguments in writing using thesis statements, claims and evidence, and to analyze writing for errors in logic.
- The University Writing Requirement (WR) ensures students both maintain their fluency in writing and use writing as a tool to facilitate learning. To receive Writing Requirement credit, a student must receive a grade of C or higher and a satisfactory completion of the writing component of the course. This means that written assignments must meet minimum word requirements totaling 6,000 words.

General Education Learning Outcomes

At the end of this course, students will be expected to have achieved the following learning outcomes in content, communication and critical thinking:

- Content: Students demonstrate competence in the terminology, concepts, theories, and methodologies used within the academic discipline.
- Communication: Students communicate knowledge, ideas and reasoning clearly and effectively in written and oral forms appropriate to the discipline. Students will participate in class discussions throughout the semester to reflect on assigned readings.
- Critical Thinking: Students analyze information carefully and logically from multiple perspectives, using discipline-specific methods, and develop reasoned solutions to problems.

Course Policies

- 1) Course credit: Except for discussion posts and unit reflections, you must complete all assignments to receive credit for this course. All work outlined within the units counts towards the Writing Requirement, so any missing assignments will lead to an “Incomplete” in the course, regardless of the grade you see on Canvas.
- 2) Participation and Attendance: Unlike some of your other classes, this course is skills-based. In other words, practice makes all the difference to writing; the more you write, the better you become. Consequently, the effects of this course are cumulative, and being “present” online means being active on discussion boards and other interactive elements of the course. In the online course, participation measures your attendance. We must all make the effort to engage with each other in this completely online and asynchronous setting, so assignments like discussion posts are significant to building our course community. Please take them seriously!

- 3) Netiquette: Since participation and discussion are an integral part of the course you are expected to treat your classmates with courtesy and respect as you would in a face-to-face setting. Collaboration is an integral part of the course design and applicable to real-world, workplace environments.
- 4) Project Format & Submission: All assignments will be submitted via Canvas. Regardless of the word processor you are using, please export documents as a .pdf file with your name and assignment. Example: “knudsen_memo1.pdf”
Please follow MLA style and citation guidelines:
https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/mla_style/mla_formatting_and_style_guide/mla_general_format.html.
Any documents that I cannot access will automatically receive a zero. I encourage you to check your assignments after submission on Canvas to ensure that they are in pdf format.
- 5) Academic Honesty and Plagiarism: UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge: “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: ‘On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.’” The Honor Code (<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honorcode/>) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code:

Plagiarism includes but is not limited to:

- A. Stealing, misquoting, insufficiently paraphrasing, or patch-writing.
- B. Self-plagiarism, which is the reuse of the Student’s own submitted work, or the simultaneous submission of the Student’s own work, without the full and clear acknowledgment and permission of the Faculty to whom it is submitted.
- C. Submitting materials from any source without proper attribution.
- D. Submitting a document, assignment, or material that, in whole or in part, is identical or substantially identical to a document or assignment the Student did not author.

Important Tip: You should never copy and paste something from the Internet without providing the exact location from which it came, including the date cited.

- 6) Late Papers/Assignments: All late papers and assignments will receive an automatic 10 percent deduction for the first three days after the deadline; the deduction jumps to 20 percent after the third day. If you submit an assignment one week after the original deadline, you will automatically receive a zero, but I will accept them for course credit (remember, you must submit ALL assignments to receive course credit).

Assessment Rubric

	SATISFACTORY (Y)	UNSATISFACTORY (N)
CONTENT	Papers exhibit evidence of ideas that respond to the topic with complexity, critically evaluating and synthesizing sources, and provide an adequate discussion with basic understanding of sources.	Papers either include a central idea(s) that is unclear or off- topic or provide only minimal or inadequate discussion of ideas. Papers may also lack sufficient or appropriate sources.
ORGANIZATION AND COHERENCE	Documents and paragraphs exhibit identifiable structure for topics, including a clear thesis statement and topic sentences.	Documents and paragraphs lack clearly identifiable organization, may lack any coherent sense of logic in associating and organizing ideas, and may also lack transitions and coherence to guide the reader.
ARGUMENT AND SUPPORT	Documents use persuasive and confident presentation of ideas, strongly supported with evidence. At the weak end of the satisfactory range, documents may provide only generalized discussion of ideas or may provide adequate discussion but rely on weak support for arguments.	Documents make only weak generalizations, providing little or no support, as in summaries or narratives that fail to provide critical analysis.
STYLE	Documents use a writing style with word choice appropriate to the context, genre, and discipline. Sentences should display complexity and logical structure.	Documents rely on word usage that is inappropriate for the context, genre, or discipline. Sentences may be overly long or short with awkward construction. Documents may also use words incorrectly.
MECHANICS	Papers will feature correct or error-free presentation of ideas. At the weak end of the satisfactory range, papers may contain a few spelling, punctuation, or grammatical errors that remain unobtrusive and do not obscure the paper's argument or points.	Papers contain so many mechanical or grammatical errors that they impede the reader's understanding or severely undermine the writer's credibility.
