UF QUEST KEYNOTE SPEAKER

DR. RICHARD MILLER

*Founding Director of the Coalition for Transformational
Education and President
Emeritus of Olin College*

Many of the concerns of higher education appropriately focus on achieving higher retention and graduation rates. Based in part on the results of extensive Gallup surveys of the well-being of alumni up to 40 years after graduation, the Coalition for Transformational Education (CTE) seeks instead to elevate the goals of higher education and the important role of faculty in enhancing student well-being long after the college years. Attendees will learn about the mission of the CTE, its diverse membership, current funded projects and possibilities for implementation on other campuses, and promotion of evidence-based, faculty-driven interventions intended to touch every enrolled student well into their lives. Dr. Miller will also showcase CTE's new magazine, LearningWell, that provides profiles, perspectives, new ideas, and research on the intersection of higher education and life-long well-being.
